Part 3: Using Collection Figures

Pinboards

ⓘ The pinboard will grow automatically as items are added or dragged-in, but it will not auto-shrink. Just press the N key to make it go to its natural size.

ⓘ If the pinboard is selected then if you use the Insert toolbar button or menu item, then new figures will automatically be added within the pinboard collection. Or simply double-click within the pinboard to create a new text figure at that location.

ⓘ With the pinboard selected you can hold Shift or Command and drag on the collection background to rubberband-select several items at once.
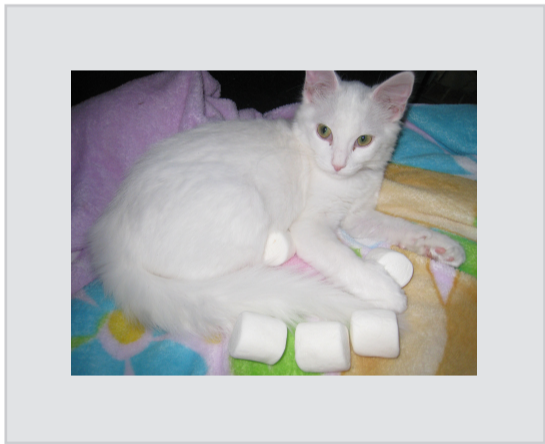

Think of a pinboard as a container of figures where no layout or style is imposed on the figures within the collection. You can place items anywhere within the collection and the collection itself will automatically grow, if necessary, to handle dropped or pasted figures.

It's almost like a free-floating mini idea space in terms of flexibility. And it's more flexible than a group figure since you can move and resize the contained figures freely and the collection will simply resize to hold the new items.

Protagonists and Setting

These characters live around an abandoned factory and help the other animals in the area find food and shelt.

Most of the action takes place in late summer.

Little did they know that they had super powers!

Any other types of pets?